II. SILVER STAR.—By direction of the President, under the provisions of the act of Congress approved 9 July 1918 (WD Bul. 43, 1918), a Silver Star for gallantry in action during the periods indicated is awarded to the following-named officers:

Air Commodore O. R. Dunlap, CBE (then group captain), Royal Canadian Air Force, displayed gallantry in action on many occasions from December 1942 to May 1945. During this time, Air Commodore Dunlap served as an air commander of units engaged in day and night bombings, which dealt effective blows against the enemy and cooperated with the air operations of the United States Army Air Forces in bringing hostilities to an early and successful conclusion.

First Lieutenant Edward Korn, (then second lieutenant), Infantry, Army of the United States, a member of Company F, 121st Infantry Regiment, 8th Infantry Division, on 9 August 1944, displayed gallantry in action near Dinard, France. To overcome a strong enemy position on ground overlooking the entire area, he led his platoon across an open field under heavy enemy small-arms, machine-gun, mortar, and direct artillery fire. Despite the fury of the enemy fire, and seeing the platoon on his right flank lose its leader and the men begin to waver, Lieutenant Korn reorganized them and continued with both platoons across the field. Severely wounded by mortar fire, he continued to lead the attack until he was no longer able to walk. By his gallant performance of duty, Lieutenant Korn contributed in a marked degree to the success of the attack.

While working with a line crew charged with the maintenance of telephone lines, Corporal Garrity, watching his companion, who was testing a line at the top of a pole, saw him suddenly bang his head against his safety belt with sparks jumping from his belt buckle. With complete disregard for his own safety, Corporal Garrity put on a pair of rubber gloves, climbed the pole, and pulled the live wires from the man's grasp. He then immediately procured a rope, which he tied around the unconscious man's chest, and lowered him safely to the ground. Through his quick thinking, courageous action, and disregard for personal safety, Corporal Garrity saved the life of his comrade and upheld the finest traditions of the military service.

Staff Sergeant Albert F. Wilson (Army serial No.) (then technician fifth grade), Medical Department, Army of the United States, a member of the 147th Quartermaster Battalion (DUKW), displayed heroism in southern France on 5 September 1944. Sighting a 6 by 6 amphibian truck speeding and being driven in a reckless manner, racing through narrow roads and villages, and forcing pedestrians and cars to flee, he voluntarily climbed to the front bumper of the jeep in which he was riding, leaped onto the bouncing truck, and successfully brought it to a halt hardly 20 feet from a group of small children who were in grave danger of being run over. The heroic conduct of Sergeant Wilson reflects great credit on himself and the Army of the United States.

Major Richard D. Melcher, (then captain), Inspector General's Department, Army of the United States, commanding Company K, 134th Infantry Regiment, displayed heroism in action in the vicinity of St. Lo, France, on 15 July 1944. When his regiment's attack was halted he went forward and found that heavy enemy fire had stopped it. It was decided that the best way to resume the attack was to blast a hole in the hedgerow to allow the tanks to pass through. Major Melcher advanced across an open field, exposing himself constantly to enemy fire, and set TNT. He then returned over the same dangerous route and detonated the charge with bazooka fire, thus enabling the supporting tanks to pass through and deliver fire on the enemy strong points. Major Melcher's heroic actions permitted his regiment to gain its objective.
