II.—SILVER STAR.—By direction of the President, under the provisions of the act of Congress approved 9 July 1918 (Bul. 43, WD 1918), the Silver Star for gallantry in action during the period indicated is awarded to the following-named officer:

Major Lester I. Fox, (then captain), Medical Corps, Army of the United States, on 24 April 1942, displayed gallantry in action at Corregidor, Philippine Islands, during an enemy artillery bombardment of Battery Crockett, where he operated a battalion first-aid station. When a shell crashed through the hoist room wall, setting fire to bedding and equipment and injuring several men, he left his station to aid the wounded. At the same time, assuming command of the battery, Major Fox organized the able-bodied men to beat back the flames which dangerously threatened the powder rooms. Two more shells burst within the battery, wounding most of the remaining men and severely injuring him and destroying his medical kit. Doggedly, he dragged himself about, helping the injured and trying to smother with a blanket the fires raging nearest the powder room doors, when another shell burst and further injured him. Through his outstanding courage and determination, as seen by a rescue detail who later entered to find him semiconscious and still by the doors to the powder room, Major Fox did much to prevent a terrible explosion and loss of life in the battery emplacement.

Assisting a severely wounded officer, Sergeant Baldan helped to lead the men from the precarious position, through icy waters in enemy territory and through minefields, to the safety of friendly lines. Sergeant Baldan's leadership and courage are in keeping with highest traditions of the military service.

Under fire of an enemy counterattack supported by tanks, artillery, and heavy mortars, he, with a medical corpsman, reconnoitered a route for casualty evacuation, then led a medical section through an exposed area to an aid station. Later, driving through enemy territory in 2 jeeps to get 12 very seriously wounded men to medical care, Lieutenant Long and the soldier encountered heavy German automatic small-arms fire. Boldly breaking out and relying on speed and evasion, they daringly passed an alerted German outpost. Suddenly a barrage of enemy mortar fire bracketed the vehicle, fragments punctured a tire, and, unable to drive on, the group was overtaken by the enemy patrol and captured. Lieutenant Long, in his determination to aid the casualties, demonstrated outstanding initiative and personal courage that reflect great credit on himself and the military service.
