Colonel Kenneth H. Bitting,
Air Corps, Army of the United States.

1 February 1944 to 31 May 1945. (This award supersedes the awards, to Colonel Bitting, of the Bronze Star Medal for service from January to December 1944, as published in General Orders 64, Headquarters Air Service Command, United States Strategic Air Forces in Europe, 13 December 1944, and the Army Commendation Ribbon for service during the same period.)

Colonel Thomas J. Heavey, Cavalry, United States Army. April to October 1945. (This award supersedes the awards, to Colonel Heavey, of the Bronze Star Medal, for service from 24 April to 25 May 1945, as published in General Orders 131, Headquarters, Services of Supply, United States Forces, China Theater, 8 October 1945, and any Army Commendation Ribbon for service during the same period. Par. 8, sec. VI, General Orders 28, WD, 1946, pertaining to the award of the Legion of Merit (first Oak-Leaf Cluster) to Colonel Heavey, for service from June to October 1945, is rescinded.)

II_SILVER STAR.—By direction of the President, under the provisions of the act of Congress approved 9 July 1918 (Bul. 43, WD, 1918), the Silver Star for gallantry in action during the period indicated is awarded posthumously to the following-named enlisted man:

Private Wilbur F. Gober (Army serial No. ), Infantry, Army of the United States, a rifleman with Company A, 501st Parachute Infantry Regiment, 101st Airborne Division, displayed gallantry in action on 25 September 1944 at Erde, Holland. In a determined attack to clear a forest area and force the enemy out of the woods, he advanced with his unit through heavy hostile fire, killing several of the enemy gunners. Coming again to the edge of the woods, then into open terrain under the full sweep of German fire, he suddenly saw a comrade fall from an enemy bullet. Immediately he ran forward to the clearing and, advancing through the hail of enemy rifle and small-arms fire, approached the fallen man when suddenly he was hit by a German bullet. Still advancing, disregarding his mortal wound, Private Gober reached the soldier and, in the continuing fire, successfully helped him back to the woods and first aid treatment. Dying of wounds from this heroic action, Private Gober made the supreme sacrifice for his comrade in a manner in keeping with the highest traditions of the Army of the United States.

III. SILVER STAR.—By direction of the President, under the provisions of the act of Congress approved 9 July 1918 (Bul. 48, WD, 1918), the Silver Star for gallantry in action during the periods indicated is awarded to the following-named officer and enlisted men:

Sergeant Pat J. Lindsay (Army serial No. ), Infantry, Army of the United States, a member of Company A, 501st Parachute Infantry Regiment, distinguished himself by gallantry in action, on 5 October 1044, near Driel, Holland. His unit was attacking in an apple orchard against heavy machine-gun and riffe fire from an enemy strong point. A comrade, trying to advance his machine gun to a better position, was seriously wounded. Sergeant Lindsay, supervising his squad in a nearby drainage ditch, immediately arose, crawled over the open ground under withering machine-gun fire, and pulled his comrade back 75 feet to the drainage ditch. The fearless, courageous, and unselfish act of Sergeant Lindsay was an inspiration to his platoon.

Lieutenant Colonel Carlos E. McAfec, (then major), Judge Advocate General's Department, United States Army, exhibited gallantry in action in the Philippine Islands while serving as assistant, G-8, Philippine Division, and as liaison officer between Bataan Force Headquarters and Headquarters Philippine Division from 24 December 1941 to 5, 11, and 26 January 1942. Colonel McAfee displayed exceptional courage and competence on numerous hazardous liaison missions. Through his efficiency and devotion to duty, he made a distinct contribution to the heroic defense of Bataan.

Private First Class Marvin D. Meyers (Army serial No. ) (then private), Infantry, Army of the United States, a member of Company F, 407th Infantry Regiment, 102d Division, displayed gallantry in action, on 2 December 1044, at Flossdorft, Germany. In a battalion attack on the village, when learning that his battalion commander needed a runner to reach another company, he volunteered to deliver the important message. Leaving his position of shelter, he ran into heavy enemy machine-gun and rifle fire which ranged over the field. Stopping midway in the flat, fire-swept terrain, he attended two badly wounded infantrymen and, amid the hail of enemy bullets, gave them first aid before continuing his mission. Private Meyers' heroic courage and determination demonstrated in the voluntary performance of his mission are in keeping with the highest traditions of the military service.

II, Bul. 8, WD, 1944), the Bronze Star Medal for heroic achievement in connection with military operations against an enemy of the United States during the periods indicated is awarded to the following named officers and enlisted men:

First Lieutenant Robert A. Alber, (then second lieutenant), Infantry, Army of the United States, a member of Company A, 23d Infantry Regiment, on 15 April 1945, distinguished himself by heroic achievement at Merseburg, Germany. As leader of the first platoon, he led the company into the German-held town and secured the first objective. To locate a passage across a railroad line, which was under direct enemy fire, he led a reconnaissance patrol and upon finding a route, was immediately subject to heavy enemy automatic fire. Ordering a machine gun brought up, Lieutenant Alber personally operated the weapon while under direct enemy fire, knocked out the hostile gun position, and cleared the route for the advance.

Captain William M. Byrd, (then first lieutenant), Infantry, Army of the United States, distinguished himself by heroic achievement at Hollandia Airdrome, Dutch New Guinea, on 24-25 April 1944. When an enemy shell hit a tree and burst directly over the aid station of the 1st Battalion, 21st Infantry Regiment, killing and wounding several medical personnel and patients, Captain Byrd, battalion communication officer, voluntarily left the safety of his fox hole and assisted the battalion surgeon in giving first aid and comfort to the wounded and dying men. With complete disregard for his safety, he worked throughout the night, often using a flash light, although it revealed his position to the enemy. Through his inspiring courage and heroic action, Captain Byrd upheld the finest traditions of the United States Army.

Captain Bertram Cohen, (then first lieutenant), Air Corps, Army of the United States, distinguished himself by heroic achievement in action, on 6 and 7 December 1944, in the Philippine Islands. On this night, Japanese ground forces assaulted the camp area of the 824th Airdrome Squadron. Enemy patrols attacked the north line of perimeter defense commanded by Captain Cohen. When the enemy rushed this sector Captain Cohen gathered together a small detachment and took them to a new position beyond the perimeter, where he set up a concentration of fire with submachine gun, carbine and automatic pistol exposing himself to enemy fire. His actions repulsed enemy soldiers who were on the verge of blasting the perimeter positions with hand grenades. Captain Cohen's courage reflects great honor on himself and the military service.

Master Sergeant Arthur C. Kielblock, Jr. (Army serial No. ) (then staff sergeant), Infantry, Army of the United States, performed heroic service, on 26 April 1945, while serving with Headquarters Company, 91st Infantry Division, in Italy. While proceeding on a reconnaissance toward the Adige River, he disregarded sulper fire and pushed on. Upon entering the town of Anglara, he joined forces with several Partisans in a fire fight with the enemy. They drove to the center of the town and apprehended 18 of the enemy. Sergeant Kielblock's heroic action was typical of the highest traditions of the United States Army.

Technical Sergeant Oifford C. Miracle (Army serial No. ) (then technician fifth grade), Infantry, Army of the United States, a member of Company I, 5th Infantry Regiment, distinguished himself by heroic action against the enemy, on 25 March 1945, in the vicinity of Lingenfeld, Germany. While his platoon was advancing through a large draw, the enemy opened fire from their well-dug-in trenches on both sides. Effective automatic and rifle-fire severely wounded the lead scout. Sceing the wounded man fall, Sergeant Miracle, the medical aid man, with total disregard for his personal safety, dashed through the pinned-down platoon and intense cross-fire to the wounded scout. While under direct observation and close-falling rifle fire, Sergeant Miracle promptly administered first aid and saved the life of the scout. This gallant action by Sergeant Miracle was an inspiration to all members of this unit and exemplified the highest traditions of the armed forces.

2. By direction of the President, under the provisions of Executive Order 9419, 4 February 1944 (Sec. Private Jack A. Bleffer (Army serial No. ), Infantry, Army of the United States, a gunner with Company A, 501st Parachute Infantry Regiment,

101st Airborne Division, on 25 September 1944, distinguished himself by heroic achievement at Erde, Holland. During a severe enemy counterattack, he voluntarily took over his platoon when the commander was killed by enemy fire. Quickly placing all machine guns in position, disregarding the heavy enemy fire, he stood in the open amid the hail of enemy bullets, directing the gunners and placed concentrated fire on the advancing enemy troops. By his courageous leadership and heroic determination, Private Bleffer successfully organized the platoon and inspired the men to hold their position in the face of the strong enemy attack
