I..SILVER STAR.—By direction of the President, under the provisions of the act of Congress approved 9 July 1918 (Bul. 48, WD, 1918), the Silver Star for gallantry in action during the period indicated is awarded to the following-named officer:

First Lieutenant Leon V. Pablo, , Infantry, Philippine Army, displayed gallantry in action in Bataan, Philippine Islands, on or about 12 February 1942. When a large force of Japanese broke through the main line of resistance along Trail 7 of the Pilar-Bagac Road and headed toward Mariveles, Lieutenant Pablo, in charge of a contingent of soldiers from Company F, 2d Battalion, 11th Infantry Regiment, 11th Infantry Division, Philippine Army, mounted a tank and directed his men in a successful counterattack, which despite overwhelming odds, resulted in annihilation of the entire enemy force and restoration of the main line of resistance without loss of ground. By his undaunted courage and outstanding leadership, Lieutenant Pablo did much to prevent an early attack on Mariveles and its possible capture.

II..SOLDIER'S MEDAL.—1. By direction of the President, under the provisions of the act of Congress approved 2 July 1926 (Bul. 8, WD, 1926), the Soldier's Medal for heroism not involving actual conflict with an enemy during the periods indicated is awarded to the following-named enlisted men:

Sergeant First Class Larry S. Bussler (), United States Air Force, a member of the Maintenance Squadron, 316th Maintenance and Supply Group, Greenville Air Force Base, Greenville, South Carolina, displayed heroism on 7 February 1948, near Saluda, North Carolina, when a C-47 aircraft, on which he was assigned as crew chief, crashed into a mountain and caught fire. Sergeant Bussler escaped through the cockpit escape hatch and after he was clear of the airplane he heard cries for help and returned to find the copilot hopelessly trapped in the escape hatch by a falling tree. With complete disregard for his personal safety, Sergeant Bussler climbed on the airplane, which was then burning flerecly and in immediate danger of exploding, released the copilot, and carried him to safety. By his courageous action in saving the life of his comrade at the risk of his life, Sergeant Bussler brought great credit to himself and the United States Air Force.

Master Sergeant Thomas A. Culley (Army serial No.), Air Corps, Army of the United States, displayed heroism at the risk of his life or 8 March 1947 at Panama City, Florida. While boating with another soldier in the Gulf of Mexico, their small boat was capsized by the wake of a passing vessel, throwing Sergeant Culley and the other soldier into the water. Sergeant Culley, after reaching safety, saw the other soldier drowning and left his position of safety to rescue his companion, having to submerge to locate him. He attempted to tow his companion to some nearby pilings, but the current was too strong and both men were swept past the pilings. He then attempted to reach the capsized boat, 150 yards away, finally succeeding despite the handicap of heavy clothing worn by himself and his companion. Not until this time did Sergeant Culley call for help. Both men were eventually picked up by a Navy rescue boat. Sergeant Culley's courageous act, with complete disregard for his personal safety, saved the life of his fellow soldier and reflects great credit on himself and the military service.

Technical Sergeant John A. Leaf (Army serial No.) (then staff sergeant), Air Corps, Army of the United States, displayed heroism on 20 July 1943 when his battle-damaged aircraft was forced to ditch in the North Sea. When the airplane struck the sea, an oil fire ignited and spread over the water. Completely disregarding personal safety, Sergeant Leaf pulled an unconscious gunner out of the burning oil and into a life raft. Sergeant Leaf's prompt and heroic actions on this occasion reflect the highest credit on himself and the armed forces of the United States.

2. By direction of the President, under the provisions of the act of Congress approved 2 July 1926 (Bul. 8, WD, 1926), the Soldier's Medal for heroism not involving actual conflict with an enemy during the period indicated was awarded by the War Department, on 21 October 1941, to the following-named emilsted man:

Private First Class James M. King (Army social No.), Company A, 3d Reconnaissance Battalion (A), 3d Armored Division, Army of the United States, displayed heroism in saving a soldfor from drowning at Alexandria, Louisiana, on 3 May 1941. Private King jumped from the Pineville-Alexandria Bridge, a distance of 15 feet, into the Red River, which was at food stage and choked with mud and debris, and rescued a soldier who had fallen from a house-boat into the river and who was fighting desperately in an attempt to avoid rescue. This act was performed without thought of personal safety and at the risk of his life and the heroism and presence of mind displayed by Private King on this occasion reflect great credit on himself and the military service.
