of Merit (Degree of Legionnaire) for exceptionally meritorious conduct in the performance of outstanding service is awarded to:

Lieutenant Colonel Maurice J. L. Nizart, , French Army. 4 October 1955 to 14 July 1958.

V. SOLDIER'S MEDAL. By direction of the President, under the Provisions of the act of Congress, approved 2 July 1926, a Soldier's Medal for heroism not involving actual conflict with an enemy is awarded posthumously to:

Sergeant Albert A. Ilse, , Infantry, United States Army, a member of Company B, 2d Battle Group, 4th Infantry, distinguished himself by heroism at Hohenfels, Germany, on 14 November 1958. Sergeant Ilse was engaged in tactical field training exercises in company with his gun crew making a night withdrawal under blackout conditions when the jeep in which they were riding overturned in deep mud and pinned him and his driver underneath. The vehicle sank to 18 inches and continued to sink slowly, threatening the life of both men. Realizing that immediate rescue would be imperative, and with complete disregard for his own personal safety, Sergeant Ilse unselfishly and heroically ordered the members of his crew to rescue the driver first, at the sacrifice of his own life. His brave courage and selfless devotion to his men are in keeping with the highest and most cherished ideals of the United States Army, and reflect the utmost credit upon himself and the military service.

Sergeant First Class Oscar Vitan, , Artillery, United States Army, a member of Battery C, 4th Missile Battalion (NIKE-HERCULES), 61st Artillery, distinguished himself by heroism on 18 April 1950. While on a fishing trip on the San Joaquin River, Calif., one of his companions accidentally slipped and fell from the boat into the fast, treacherous water. Without hesitation and with complete disregard for his own personal safety, Sergeant Vitan immediately jumped fully clad into the water in an attempt to rescue the struggling man. When rescue attempts proved unsuccessful he refused to relinquish his hold on the elderly man and remained with him until they both were carried downstream and drowned. Sergeant Vitan's dauntless courage, heroic action, and unselfish regard for his fellowman at the sacrifice of his own life, reflect great credit upon himself and the military service.

VI. SOLDIER'S MEDAL. By direction of the President, under the provisions of the act of Congress, approved 2 July 1926, a Soldier's Medal for heroism not involving actual conflict with an enemy is awarded to:

Sergeant First Class James D. Farmer, , Corps of Engineers, United States Army, a member of Headquarters Company, 3d Battalion, United States Army Engineer Center Regiment, distinguished himself by heroism on 6 May 1950. Sergeant Farmer was traveling by automobile in the vicinity of Lincoln, Fairfax County, Va., when he came upon the scene of an accident. After a serious collision a truck had rolled down a steep incline approximately 20 feet below the road surface and landed upside down in a stream. Without hesitation or concern for his own personal safety, Sergeant Farmer volunteered his efforts to rescue two small girls trapped in the wrecked vehicle. Despite flames which had enveloped the truck and the grave danger of a possible gasoline explosion. Sergeant Farmer, in the company of two other men who arrived at the scene, approached the truck, evacuated one of the victims and returned and rescued the second girl. His brave courage, prompt initiative, and unselfish actions saved the children's lives, and reflect the utmost credit upon himself and the military service.

Master Sergeant Paul M. Mitchell, , United States Army, a member of Headquarters, United States Army, Alaska (Enlisted), Fort Richardson, distinguished himself by heroism on 20 May 1950. While fishing from the bank of the Anchor River near Anchor Point, Alaska, Sergeant Mitchell observed a 4-year old boy fall from a large boulder on the bank near him into the cold, swift waters of a dangerous stretch of rapids containing many huge boulders, rock formations, and deep holes. With complete disregard for his own personal safety, Sergeant Mitchell, fully-clothed and wearing waders, plunged immediately into the raging river swollen from the spring runoff of melting snow and ice. When the strong current swept him off his feet and swamped his waders as he reached the boy, he managed to catch the child just as they both went under. Weighted down with his water-filled waders and the boy, Sergeant Mitchell struggled over and through the slippery boulders in the waist-deep icy water of the raging stream, worked his way to the bank, laid the small boy over a large boulder and administered artificial respiration until he regained consciousness. The presence of mind, immediate and courageous action displayed by Sergeant Mitchell in unselfishly risking his life in this emergency saved the child from certain drowning, and reflect distinct credit upon himself and the military service.

Sergeant First Class William G. Pierce, , Army Medical Service, United States Army, a member of the 60th Field Hospital, Fort Lewis, Wash., distinguished himself by heroism at Tacoma, Wash., on 27 May 1959. Upon being informed by a group of children that a little girl had fallen from the old Tacoma Dock, Tacoma, Wash., without hesitation or concern for his own safety and being completely unfamiliar with the depth and possible undercurrents, Sergeant Pierce removed his spectacles without which he has only 20/400 vision, and dived into the water under the pier to rescue the victim. In the approaching darkness he was forced to rise to the surface and dive a total of three times to a depth of between 10 and 15 feet in murky water with a strong outgoing tide, before the submerged and unconscious victim was finally located. He then swam with the victim to floating dock where a fellow-soldier lifted the child up and onto the float. Sergeant Pierce then administered artificial respiration until police and fire department personnel arrived. Sergeant Pierce's prompt and courageous action saved the little girl from drowning, and reflects distinct credit upon himself and the military service.

Specialist Four Abner W. Willis, , Infantry, a member of Company D, 2d Airborne Battle Group, 501st Infantry, distinguished himself by heroism at Rio Hato, C.Z., on 20 February 1959. While participating in Exercise "Banyan Tree" and making an approach march along the Rio Foralloncito River, a fellow trooper lost his footing on the slippery bank and fell into the river below. The soldier, a nonswimmer, was unable to hold onto the sheer rock bank and, being swept quickly downstream, faced certain drowning. Without hesitation or regard for his own personal safety and despite the swift current and hazardous conditions involved, Specialist Willis plunged into the river, dived to the bottom and recovered the nearly drowned victim. Specialist Willis's prompt and courageous actions in heroically risking his life in this sudden emergency saved the life of his fellow soldier, and reflect distinct credit upon himself and the military service.
