Private Godwin's unit, Company C, was acting as a simulated enemy force, they were not aware that another unit was to attack them from the rear. As Private Godwin got to his feet and looked around, he saw an Armored Personnel Carrier rapidly approaching his position, and immediately sensed the hazardous situation that existed. He quickly shouted a warning to his comrade, and with complete disregard for his own safety, he pushed him from the path of the oncoming personnel carrier, which was then almost upon them. By his voluntary entry into this dangerous situation he saved the life of his fellow soldier, an act which took his own life. Private Godwin's actions and example during the situation were a strong source of inspiration to all the officers and enlisted men of his unit. His extraordinary heroism exemplifies the highest traditions of the military service and reflects great credit upon himself, and the United States Army.

X—SOLDIER'S MEDAL.

Lieutenant Colonel James E. Anderson, O70249, Medical Service Corps, United States Army, distinguished himself by heroism on 31 October 1966 at the Armed Forces Institute of Pathology. Colonel Anderson while walking up a flight of stairs, observed a laboratory technician drop a glass bottle of highly toxic sulphuric acid, causing the contents of splash over his person and face. As the technician was groping around helplessly, being temporarily blinded by the acid, Colonel Anderson unhesitatingly rushed to his aid. With complete disregard for his own personal safety Colonel Anderson guided the technician to the nearest sink and commenced flushing the technician's burns with water. Although Colonel Anderson himself had been splashed with sulphuric acid dangerously close to his eyes, he continued flushing the technician's burns until help arrived. Only after the technician was in the care of other members of the Radiation Pathology Branch did Colonel Anderson tend to his own burns. Colonel Anderson's presence of mind and prompt and heroic action in this sudden and hazardous situation undoubtedly prevented serious injury and reflects exemplary conduct in the most cherished traditions of the United States Army and reflect the utmost credit upon himself and the military service.

Staff Sergeant Robert A. Andrews, RA15579699, Infantry, United States Army, is cited for heroic performance of duty on 18 May 1966 while acting as a safety Non-Commissioned Officer on a flame thrower range, Sergeant Andrews voluntarily risked death or serious injury to save the life of a novice firer. Sergeant Andrew's actions also prevented injuries to at least ten other men who were awaiting their turn to fire. Because of his actions, Sergeant Andrews himself was seriously burned on the face and hands. Sergeant Andrews actions were in the highest tradition of the service and reflect great credit on himself and his unit.

Major Roy W. Bahr, O2028335, Infantry, United States Army, demonstrated extraordinary heroism at great risk to his own life during a joint counterinsurgency field training exercise held in the Republic of Panama in conjunction with the Panama Guardia Nacional. On 26 May 1966 during an attempt by Guardia Nacional Personnel to recover a parachute resupply drop which had fallen into the sea, six swimmers were approached by a large shark. Their comrades began firing live and blank ammunition in an attempt to chase the shark away as the swimmers attempted to return to shore. Major Bahr noticed that one of the swimmers was exhausted and in danger of drowning. Major Bahr knowing full well that a shark was in the area unhesitatingly and with complete disregard for his own safety swam out to the drowning man. A Guardia Nacional private followed him and between the two of them they succeeded in towing the drowning man to safety. Major Bahr's heroic action reflects the highest credit on himself, the United States Army School of the Americas, and the United States Army.

Private First Class Richard M. Burbridge, ER13740421, United States Army, distinguished himself by an act of heroism, at approximately 2350 hours on 3 August 1966, at Camp A. P. Hill Military Reservation by voluntarily exposing himself to great personal hazard by participating in the rescue of three individuals who were trapped in an automobile accidentally overturned in a lake. Private Burbridge repeatedly dove underwater and swam inside the immersed vehicle to help in the release of the three men trapped therein. Through heroic efforts Private Burbridge's actions bring great honor to himself and to the United States Army.

Private Donald L. Capron, ER13991250, United States Army, distinguished himself by an act of heroism at approximately 2400 hours on 3 August 1966 by voluntarily exposing himself to great personal hazard by participating in the rescue of three individuals who were trapped in an automobile accidentally overturned in a lake. Private Capron, through keen observation and good judgment first noticed the car in the lake and then rushed to the scene. Private Capron then heroically dove into the water and worked inside the immersed vehicle to help save the men trapped therein. Because of these efforts, undertaken without regard for personal safety, Private Capron contributed to the saving of three lives. Private Capron's action bring great honor to him and to the United States Army.

Staff Sergeant Albert Elkins, RA20530217, United States Army, distinguished himself by heroism on 21 May 1966 while serving as a platoon Sergeant, Company C, 5th Battalion, 68th Armor, 8th Infantry Division. His superior performance of driving a burning M-60 tank away from four (4) parked, armed tanks to a safe open area reflected a sincere devotion to duty. His unselfish and complete disregard for his own safety was a key factor in extinguishing the burning vehicle and preventing greater damage to other burning vehicles, and possible injury to personnel. Although he was suffering smoke inhalation, he continued to assist untiringly until the tank was completely safe. His physical courage was displayed outwardly as he was overcome with smoke and physically removed from the tank. Immediately he was revived and once again he mounted the burning tank to give continuous assistance. His heroic deed will be remembered by members of his unit for a long time. The meritorious act displayed reflects great credit on himself, his unit, and the United States Army.

Specialist Four Donald C. Hanks, RA19810830, United States Army, distinguished himself by heroism while engaged in a fire fighting mission near Chicken, Alaska on 19 August 1966. Specialist Hanks accompanied by a fellow soldier, displayed outstanding courage and utter disregard for his own safety by entering a burning camp to save the life of Mr. Ellman Pitka. The camp was encircled by fire, burning with intense heat and dense smoke. Several others had attempted to rescue the endangered man from the burning camp using a helicopter and a bulldozer. When all others available had failed and assumed Mr. Pitka was dead, Specialist Hanks exposed himself on the outside of an M113 Armored Personnel Carrier to guide the driver into the blaze and rescue Mr. Pitka. Specialist Hank's heroic conduct, prompt actions, and determination in this hazardous situation are in the highest traditions of the United States Army and reflect great credit upon himself and the military service.

Sergeant Willie F. Hastings, RA53342718, United States Army, distinguished himself by heroism serving as an Assistant Instructor on the hand grenade committee, Committee Group, Fort Polk, Louisiana. On 28 June 1966, at approximately 1700 hours, Sergeant Hastings observed a trainee in bay number six perform the scheduled dry run practice throw, of a live fragmentation hand grenade which was accomplished without incident. During the preparation for the live throw, the armed grenade was dropped by the trainee, falling into a concrete drainage culvert two feet to the rear of the throwing bay. From the time the grenade was dropped, Sergeant Hastings had no more than four and one half seconds to retrieve the grenade and throw it into a safe area. Without hesitation Sergeant Hastings picked up the grenade, and threw it down range into the safety of the impact area. Due only to his courage, quick reaction, and total disregard for his own safety, did Sergeant Hastings save the life of the trainee involved and reduced the possibility of severe injury to other personnel in the immediate vicinity. This heroic act performed by Sergeant Hastings is in the highest traditions of the United States Army. (This award supersedes award of the Army Commendation Medal with "V" Device for heroism on 28 June 1966 as announced in General Orders Number 138, Headquarters Fort Polk, Louisiana, dated 8 August 1966.)

Specialist Four Richard L. Jones, RA8694741, Signal Corps, United States Army, who, at great risk to his own safety, demonstrated courage and heroism in saving the life of a drowning DA civilian near Warin, Thailand on 22 September 1966. Assigned to the 207th Signal Company (TROPO), 379th Signal Battalion (Support), Specialist Jones witnessed a jeep being washed off a causeway and into the rapid current of the flooded Moon River. One occupant of the jeep could not swim and was in immediate danger of drowning. Recognizing the urgency of the situation, Specialist Jones leaped from his own vehicle and into the stream where, despite the 25mph current, he managed to keep the victim afloat until others could come to their aid. Specialist Jones' courageous and decisive action averted a certain tragedy in this incident and his placing of higher concern for the safety of another than his own reflects admirably the traditions and ideals of the military service.

Specialist Four Curley Marshall, RA12673502, United States Army, Headquarters and Headquarters Company, 1st Battalion, 46th Infantry, 1st Armored Division, is cited for heroism on 7 March 1966 while serving as an assistant instructor on the 1st Armored Division Hand Grenade Committee. A grenade was thrown which failed to clear the bay, and bounded back to the floor of the pit, then bounded off the front wall and back between the trainee's feet. With exceptional rapidity and clarity of thinking, Specialist Marshall, completely disregarding his own personal safety, exhibited primary concern for the trainee's safety by physically shoving him out of the pit to the protection of the lower level behind the bay and ensuring that he had a covered position. Then realizing that time was of the essence and running short, and impressed with the necessity of neutralizing the grenade for the safety of the personnel in the area, Specialist Marshall kicked the grenade into the sump in the front of the pit, where it subsequently detonated. By his quick and courageous actions, Specialist Marshall prevented injury or possible death to the fellow soldier, himself, and the personnel in the adjoining pits. His actions were voluntary, since Specialist Marshall could have evacuated the pit with the trainee, thereby ensuring his own safety. His actions reflect greatly upon his courage, quick thinking, sound judgment, and devotion to duty, which were in the highest traditions of the United States Army.

Specialist Five Jerry L. Miller, RA16659533, United States Army distinguished himself by heroism at Augsburg, Germany on 8 September 1966 by voluntarily risking his life to rescue Frau Anna Eckert from drowning in the Holzbach Kanal. Specialist Miller, while on routine MP duty, noticed an excited group of civilians gathered on a bridge over the canal. Going to investigate, he noticed a body in the canal. Pausing only to remove his MP gear, he jumped into the canal and swam to the aid of the drowning person. Assisted by an unknown German male, who also jumped into the canal, he was able to rescue Frau Eckert. The prompt and heroic actions of Specialist Miller reflect great credit upon himself, the Military Police Corps and the entire United States Army.

Specialist Five Carrol Y. Picard, WA8406513, Woman's Army Corps, United States Army, distinguished herself by exceptionally meritorious and courageous acts on 18 December 1964, following the crash of an Army aircraft in which she was a passenger. Unpredictable icing conditions caused the aircraft to crash in desolate country near Hachita, New Mexico, seriously injuring the officer pilot and painfully injuring Specialist Picard and the other passenger, an enlisted man. Without regard to her personnel safety and injuries, she minimized the fire hazard in the fume-filled cabin by disabling the aircraft electrical system and, unassisted, extracted the unconscious enlisted man from the wreckage. Calmly assessing the worsening weather, the desolate area, and the urgent need conscious companion in walking five miles through freezing weather to obtain help and medical aid. Throughout this period, without regard to self and with odds against her in difficult terrain and extreme weather, she retained unswervingly her positive, unselfish purpose of preserving the lives of her companions. Specialist Picard's exceptional bravery, willingness to risk further injury for her fellow soldiers, and her deep dedication to what she clearly saw as her duty, has brought credit upon herself, the Women's Army Corps, and the United States Army.

Specialist Four (then Private First Class) Royce D. Rennels, US54367643, United States Army, while serving as a member of Headquarters and Headquarters Battery, 1st Battalion, 333d Artillery, Fort Bliss, Texas, distinguished himself by heroism on 13 May 1966 at Fort Bliss, Texas. In the early morning hours of 13 May 1966, Specialist Rennels, who was off duty at the time, happened on the scene of an automobile accident in the Logan Heights area of Fort Bliss, Texas. The automobile had struck a utility pole, overturned, and burst into flames. One passenger was thrown clear of the wreckage. The other occupant was trapped inside the flaming wreckage. Specialist Rennels immediately rushed to the vehicle and, with complete disregard for his own safety and despite the danger of the flames, escaping gasoline fumes, and a potential explosion, aided in removing the unconscious man to a place of safety. While a companion administered first aid to this victim, Specialist Rennels proceeded to the unconscious form of the passenger thrown clear of the wreck. He immediately administered first aid to the victim, who was suffering from a severe head wound, until arrival of an ambulance. Specialist Rennel's prompt and heroic action in this emergency is in the highest traditions of the military service and reflects great credit upon himself and the United States Army.

Specialist Five Charles T. Rigney, RA53358061, (then Specialist Four) United States Army, a member of Headquarters Company, 1st Battalion, 48th Infantry distinguished himself by heroism at approximately 2000 hours in the vicinity of Lieblo, Germany on 10 December 1965. An M-60 Tank had plunged off a bridge into the Kinzig River, overturned and trapped a soldier within the tank. The night was dark and extremely cold. The river was flooded, fast moving and muddy. Realizing that the soldier probably could not free himself, Specialist Four Rigney, with complete disregard for his own safety, volunteered to attempt the rescue of the soldier. Entering the freezing water, Specialist Rigney dived without equipment through the hatch to the soldier, freed him by removing the equipment which entrapped him, and returned him to the shore for medical care; The soldier could not be revived. Specialist Rigney's courageous action to save the entrapped soldier under difficult and hazardous conditions reflect his unselfish and comradely spirit and reflect great credit upon himself, his unit and the United States Army.

Chief Warrant Officer Jesse Rothrock, W2148810, United States Army, while serving as a member of United States Armed Forces Southern Command, distinguished himself by heroism on the afternoon on 17 June 1966 at Fort Gulick, Canal Zone. While standing outside his quarters in Building 502, Gulick Heights, For Gulick, Canal Zone, Chief Warrant Officer Rothrock heard a small child cry out. He turned and observed a driverless Volkswagen sedan moving backwards and rapidly picking up speed down the driveway towards the road with a frightened child in the driver's seat. In the path of the car was a steep one hundred meter, sixty degree slope. Responding promptly and with complete disregard for his own safety, Chief Warrant Officer Rothrock raced to the car, threw open the door, and unhesitatingly leaped into the Volkswagen with the child. Despite the danger to himself, Chief Warrant Officer Rothrock through his quick thinking and immediate reaction was able to bring the automobile under control just as it reached the edge of the pavement and the start of the one hundred meter slope. Chief Warrant Officer Rothrock's heroic conduct during this emergency situation is in the highest traditions of the United States Army and reflects great credit upon himself and the military service.

Private Arthur L. Stewart, ER13991249, United States Army, distinguished himself by an act of heroism, at approximately 2400 hours on 3 August 1966, by voluntarily exposing himself to great personal hazard by participating in the rescue of three individuals, who were trapped in an automobile, accidentally overturned in a lake. Private Stewart repeatedly dove underwater and swam inside the immersed vehicle to release two of the individuals trapped therein. Finally he was able to release the third person who was trapped by the seat belt. Without these heroic efforts, these men would have surely died. Private Stewart's actions bring great honor to him and to the United States Army.

Specialist Four (then Private First Class) Thomas L. Tomlinson, US55825685, United States Army, distinguished himself by heroic and courageous actions in saving the life of a small Korean child with complete disregard for his own life and personal safety on 16 July 1966 while assigned to Headquarters, Headquarters and Service Battery, 1st Battalion, 79th Artillery, 7th Infantry Division. Specialist Tomlinson leaped into the swollen and torrential flood waters of the Imjin River, in the vicinity of Musan-ni, Korea, and rescued the small child from certain death. Specialist Tomlinson's heroic deed was spontaneous, without a moments hesitation to consider the risk involved. Specialist Tomlinson's courage and bravery are in the highest traditions of the military service and reflects great credit upon himself, the 7th Infantry Division, and the United States Army.

XI—BRONZE STAR MEDAL. By direction of the President, under the provisions of Executive Order 11046, 24 August 1962, the Bronze Star Medal with "V" device for heroic achievement in connection with military operations against hostile forces is awarded to:

Private First Class Harry Martin Kluft, 16064638, United States Army for the period 11 March 1945, while serving as a member of the military police platoon of the 11th armored Division. Private Klaft and an unidentified soldier of the platoon were assigned to a jeep mounted with a machine gun to guard the prisoners of war. Just before dark, six or eight enemy fighter planes strafed the area in an attempt to divert the guards long enough to permit the prisoners of war to escape. When the attack began the members of the platoon located in the buildings in the area remained under cover and the unidentified soldier with Private Klaft took cover under the jeep. Many of the prisoners began running for the nearby woods in an attempt to escape. Seeing the prisoners attempting to escape, Private Klaft singlehandedly and without regard for his own safety, ran through the strafing fire, firing his carbine over the heads of the prisoners, stopping them before they reached the woods and escaped. Friendly aircraft soon arrived over the area and engaged the enemy aircraft. Private Klaft could have taken cover during the attack, but voluntarily chose to remain at his place of duty and at the risk of his own life prevented the prisoners of war, many of whom were SS troopers who could give valuable information to our intelligence, from escaping into the nearby woods. Private Klaft's heroic conduct is in the highest traditions of the United States Army and reflects the utmost credit upon himself and the military service.

Captain Robert J. Thomas, O5309180, Artillery (then First Lieutenant), United States Army, Civil Guard Advisor, Quang Tin Province, distinguished himself by heroism under unusual circumstances on the night of 13-14 September 1963 in the vicinity of Long Son hamlet, Quang Tin Province, Republic of Vietnam. Having accompanied a paramilitary platoon to an ambush site in response to current intelligence, Captain Thomas was subsequently abandoned by the platoon during a heavy rainstorm. Before he could rejoin the platoon, a five man VC patrol entered the killing zone of the ambush area. Without hesitation and at great risk to himself, Captain Thomas opened fire with such violence and accuracy that all five of the enemy were killed. Captain Thomas retrieved their weapons and documents, and returned to the province capital. His action was in keeping with the highest traditions of the military service, inspirational, and exemplary to his American and Vietnamese comrades alike.

XII—AIR MEDAL. By direction of the President, under the provisions of Executive Order 9158, 11 May 1942, as amended by Executive Order 9242-A, 11 September 1942, an Air Medal for heroism while participating in aerial flight is awarded by the Department of the Army to:

Specialist Four Paul W. Fehringer, US55807518, United States Army. 26 July 1966. Specialist Four Paul W. Fehringer, is cited for heroism on 26 July 1966. Specialist Fehringer was acting as a crew chief on a UH-1B helicopter conducting flood rescue operations in the inundated Han River Valley, east of Seoul, Korea. The crew's first rescue operation involved evacuating approximately 170 persons stranded on the rapidly disappearing high ground of a Korean Village. The helicopter landed in a backyard of one of the Village homes, in the only remaining dry area which measured about 50 square feet. Immediately following the helicopter's landing, the flood victims began pushing, shoving and fighting, all seeking to board the ship. Responding immediately to the explosiveness of the situation, Specialist Fehringer jumped out into the midst of the mob and by using sign language, and a limited amount of Korean, he attempted to gain control. Pulling an English speaking Korean to his side he shouted orders that were translated and brought the crowd under his control. He then began to systematically load women and children into the helicopter. During the two mile flight to the off-loading area, Specialist Fehringer spent his time reassuring frightened mothers and children and maintaining control. Ten flights were required to evacuate this group of people. On another occasion it was necessary to hover over a house to get to the people stranded within the building. While the helicopter was hovering, Specialist Fehringer climbed down the skid to the roof of the house and went inside to help them. Specialist Fehringer's actions throughout the rescue operations brought great credit on himself and the United States Army.

XV—ARMY COMMENDATION MEDAL. By direction of the Secretary of the Army, under the provisions of paragraph 33, AR 672-5-1, the Army Commendation Medal with "V" for heroism is awarded to:

Corporal James D. Callahan, 2045222, United States Marine Corps, distinguished himself by his heroic actions while serving with the First Ranger Group, Advisory Team 1, during the period 15 through 18 May 1966. Corporal Callahan was serving as the Radio Operator for the 11th Ranger Battalion, during the period when Government troops moved into and occupied the city of Da Nang. Corporal Callahan remained with the battalion throughout the tense political struggle. He was constantly exposed to small arms fire as he moved among the battalion, reporting on its location and activities. Corporal Callahan maintained constant contact with the First Ranger Group CP during the tense moments when the struggle forces were making overtures to the members of the battalion. By his advice and persuasiveness, Corporal Callahan was able to discourage the commander from joining the struggle forces, thereby materially lessening the chances of prolonging the armed conflict, and ultimately saving many lives. Throughout the entire period, Corporal Callahan exposed himself to small arms fire while attempting to locate and render safe escort to ranger personnel desiring to rejoin elements of their unit. Through his efforts, some 60 rangers were returned safely. Corporal Callahan's display of personal courage, ability, and professionalism, and his disregard for his own personal safety, reflect great credit upon himself and are in keeping with the highest traditions of the military service.

Captain William R. Greer, FR 72119, United States Air Force, distinguished himself by heroic actions on 11 June 1966 in the Republic of Vietnam. On this date, Captain Greer was serving as Forward Air Controller for the 1st Bde, 101st Airborne Division conducting combat operations in the DAK TO area. An emergency request had been received for the immediate evacuation of thirty-three (33) US WIA, from a small landing zone deep in the enemy infested jungles; the landing zone was located in the midst of a raging battle between US and heavily entrenched North Vietnamese Regular Army forces and was covered by NVA automatic and 12.7-mm machine gun fire. Captain Greer immediately proceeded to the battle area and effected coordination with the ground force and medical evacuation helicopter commanders. He then requested close tactical air support and began making low level passes over the battle area so as to accurately locate the enemy positions; on each pass Captain Greer's aircraft was the target of intense enemy automatic weapons fire. Upon arrival of the tactical fighter aircraft, Captain Greer briefed the pilots, marked the enemy positions and began to effectively control tactical close air support strikes against the entrenched enemy forces. Captain Greer directed the medical evacuation helicopters to approach the landing zone parallel and concurrent with the tactical aircraft strike passes, thus enabling the tactical fighters to effectively suppress the enemy fire while the helicopters entered and exited the landing zone. Captain Greer's actions were responsible for the safe evacuation of all friendly casualties from the area with the loss of no aircraft to enemy ground fire. This outstanding display of personal bravery, aggressiveness and dedication to duty is in keeping with the highest standards of the military service and reflect great credit upon Captain Greer, his unit and the United States Air Force.

Captain Thomas S. Hoff, FR3029830, United States Air Force, for heroism on 31 May 1966, while serving as a Forward Air Controller with the 1st Brigade, 101st Airborne Division, conducting counterinsurgency operations in the Republic of Vietnam. Captain Hoff was flying column cover and assisting as a radio relay station for an artillery resupply convoy near DAK TO, RVN when the convoy was ambushed by a VC platoon. Captain Hoff immediately requested helicopter gunships and artillery supporting fires. He made repeated low passes over the battle area so as to accurately locate the enemy positions and in so doing his aircraft received several hits from the intensive enemy ground fire. Captain Hoff directed artillery fire against the enemy positions and upon arrival of the gunships shifted the artillery fire to suspected enemy routes of withdrawal, and immediately and effectively employed the gunships against the enemy positions thus suppressing the enemy fire against the friendly convoy. Captain Hoff's quick and professional response was instrumental in preventing friendly casualties and causing the enemy force to break contact and withdraw. His actions displayed aggressiveness, personal bravery and devotion to duty and reflect great credit upon himself, his unit and the United States Airforce.

Staff Sergeant Jack R. McCleary, AF19284404, United States Air Force, distinguished himself by heroism in Vinh Long City, Vinh Long Province, Republic of Vietnam on 5 February 1966. Sergeant McCleary was a patron in the Le Hoa restaurant when a claymore type mine was exploded by Viet Cong terrorists, killing and wounding numerous persons. Although wounded in the shoulder, and realizing the danger of a second planned explosion, he courageously positioned himself in the shattered doorway to prevent panic stricken patrons from rushing out the doorway to possibly greater danger. He then proceeded to treat the injured. Realizing more medical aid was required, he proceeded to the MACV Advisory House and procured additional medical personnel, returned to the scene and assisted with the treatment and evacuation of the wounded. Only after all had been treated or evacuated he received treatment for his own wounds. Sergeant McCleary's prompt and courageous acts are in the highest traditions of the military and reflect great credit upon himself and the Armed Forces.
