HEADQUARTERS
DEPARTMENT OF THE ARMY
WASHINGTON, DC, 10 February 2006

REDESIGNATION OF THE UNITED STATES ARMY TRAINING AND DOCTRINE
COMMAND FUTURES CENTER AS THE ARMY CAPABILITIES INTEGRATION CENTER

1. Effective 15 February 2006, the United States Army Training and Doctrine Command's (TRADOC) Futures Center, to include all missions, functions, personnel, equipment, and resources, is redesignated as the Army Capabilities Integration Center (ARCIC). The ARCIC supports the Commanding General, TRADOC in the design, development, and integration of force capability requirements for the Army. The ARCIC uses wargaming, experimentation, and concepts to develop and integrate capability requirements from a comprehensive perspective of doctrine, organization, training, materiel, leadership and education, personnel, and facilities (DOTMLPF).
2. The ARCIC is responsible to the Secretary of the Army and Chief of Staff, Army for determining and integrating force requirements and synchronizing the development of DOTMLPF solutions across the Army. The ARCIC provides the management structure for identifying capability gaps and directing analytical support for DOTMLPF developments. This includes validation of research and development priorities for key Army Science and Technology needs, and the development and validation of integrated operational architectures depicting warfighting capabilities.
3. The ARCIC will be the lead Army agency for coordination with Joint agencies and other Services for identification and integration of joint required capabilities. This responsibility includes Joint wargaming, concept development, and experimentation.
4. Additionally, the Director, ARCIC has integration coordination authority across the Army in matters pertaining to identification of required capabilities and DOTMLPF integration. The scope of responsibilities includes current developments in support of the Global War on Terrorism and the full range of developments and transformational efforts in support of the future combat force strategy. This strategy involves the continual evolution of the Current Modular Force into the Future Modular Force through the insertion of capabilities from the Future Combat Systems Program.

*This General Order supersedes Department of the Army General Order 2003-10, dated 4 November 2003.

GO 4

5. This General Order does not modify functions and responsibilities assigned by Department of the Army General Order 2002-03, Assignment of Functions and Responsibilities Within Headquarters, Department of the Army, 9 June 2002. Of particular note, authority for resource allocation and integrated execution of approved force management plans remains vested in HQDA.
